A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as a waste of time to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with overwork. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, respondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," cramping or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, "sick" or "rising" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to it until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a scientific extract of native medicinal plants with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret medicine of known composition.

WARRINER'S STORY.

A chain of embroilments involving three men, extending over many years and finally culminating in the almost wholesale looting of the Big Four Railroad treasury, was the story told by Charles L. Warriner, defaulting Olcott treasurer of the road, in his testimony yesterday in the trial of Mrs. Jeanette Stewart-Ford for blackmail.

Warriner represented himself as a man pouring in gold with both hands and in ever-increasing amounts to keep sealed the mouth of the woman who through her infatuation for one of the accused embezzlers, E. S. Cooke, had learned the secret. Frank Comstock, Warriner's predecessor as local treasurer, was declared to be the third man.

Clearly and in unbroken tones Warriner told his incredible story. It was his fourth and last day on the witness stand, for when the court adjourned his examination was concluded. Only twice during that time did the man allow his composure to desert him and then only for a moment.

According to the witness when he assumed office as treasurer in 1902 he learned that Cooke was short in his accounts $24,000. He also learned that his predecessor, Comstock, was short $10,500. His himself was a defaulter and to prevent his crime from being discovered he engaged to conceal the thefts of the two former officials.

In the story of the gigantic theft there is one question which has never been definitely answered and the attorneys for the defense yesterday made another effort to obtain its solution of what became of the $34,500 which Warriner has confessed to have stolen.

The witness declared that he had paid approximately $163,000 in blackmail and that $32,000 had been stolen by others than himself. The remainder of $442,000 is explained by him as having been lost in speculation.

Although he knew exactly the amount embezzled and the approximate amount of "wash money" paid, to all questions as to his investments he replied that he could not remember how much money he had put into any particular enterprises. He reiterated most emphatically that he "could not recollect" the questions became discouraged and abandoned their efforts.

A loud light was thrown on the strange tale when the letters of Cooke to Mrs. Ford were read to the court.

In the letter Cooke wrote that "O. H." was planning to expose him if he did not abandon Mrs. Ford. Warriner stated that "O. H." stood for "Old Hic" and was the name Cooke used for his wife in his communications to Mrs. Ford. In another letter Cooke advised Mrs. Ford to have nothing to do with her men unless "there is big money in it."

The judge would only allow excerpts of the letters to be read, on account of the expressions with which they were surrounded.

During the reading of the letters Mrs. Ford endeavored to conceal her face and wept bitterly. When, however, her attorney began to question Warriner as to the extent of his intimacy with him she raised her head and gazing at the witness smiled slightly.

Sufferers who say they have tried everything without success, the people we are looking for. We want them to know from glad experience that Ely's Cream Balm will conquer Cold in the Head, Hay Fever, and obstructed forms of Catarrh. This remedy acts directly on the inflamed, sensitive membranes. Cleansing, soothing and healing. One trial will convince you of its healing power. Price 50c. All druggists, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren St., New York.

COLONEL MOSBY.

A friend of mine met Colonel Mosby, the other day, in the New Willard at Washington, and found him looking about the same as he did in the days long before the fire when his soldierly figure walked the streets of San Francisco. He has an air in one of the departments which serves him in lieu of a pension. While here the famous guerrilla leader was in the law department of the Southern Pacific Railroad where O. P. Huntington had put him in fulfillment of a death-bed promise made to General Grant. The latter was fond of Mosby. He remembered that the Confederate raider with scarce 500 men had done such damage to outposts, railroads, scouting parties and camps that it finally necessitated the campaign services of forty thousand men who had to guard threatened points. This was fine soldiering and Grant knew it. Afterward when Mosby had shown the moral courage to accept the results of the war and cast in his lot with the republicans, Grant took his former enemy into full confidence; and while president he kept Mosby in office, part of the time as consul general at Shanghai. His influence aided him under the Hayes and Arthur administrations; but Cleveland let Mosby out and then Grant turned to his friend Huntington. It was at Mount McGregor, where the great commander died, "I wish you would do something for Colonel Mosby," the general whispered, for the cancer in his throat had nearly deprived him of the power of speech. "Give him a position and keep him as long as he lives." Huntington promised and kept his word. Every now and then the law department found some excuse for letting the old Confederate out, but as soon as Huntington heard of it, Mosby was put back. However, one morning the railroad king went over to the great majority and within a week the law department had Mosby's scalp. But the old man had not lost his pull at Washington and he will probably die in harness.

Some years ago the guerrilla chief was looking over old Virginia scenes when the horse he was driving leaped and ran away, throwing Mosby over the dashboard of the buggy, under the animal's heels. One of Mosby's eyes was kicked out. As his senses came back and he realized his hurt, the first words that sprang from his lips were:

"* * * blind old Dandolo

Byzantium's conquering foe.

It was like the white-haired partisan ranger that the soldier spirit and the martial phrase should arise to meet each crisis of his life. W. G. S. [San Francisco Chronicle.]

Four grand children of Ezekiel Backett, a farmer near Dover, Del., were burned to death last night at the Hackett home. The old man and the mother of the children could not save them. The ages of the victims ranged from 3 to 16 years.
